DENOMINATION DRACHMAE 150 — OLYMPIA

Olympia was one of the brightest peaks of the miracle that was Ancient Greece. Situated in the Peloponnese, it lies in a pleasant valley thickly wooded with plane and interested by the rivers Alpheus and Cladeus. Olympia was not a town but a great sanctuary where Olympian Zeus and the goddess Hera were worshipped. A number of large statues of Zeus under the ruin of Hera's temple, bear witness to its former grandeur.

DENOMINATION DRACHMAE 150 — KNOSSOS

Knossos is a picturesque spot near Heraklion, Crete. A town flourished there in very ancient times (about 2000 B.C.), and it was the kingdom of Minos, the mythological ruler of the sea. It was the first spark of European civilization, the Minoan. Today the ruins still are the national pride of Minos' palace, unearthed in 1900 by the British archaeological Evans. The many covered palace was the center of a big tree-surrounded town whose productive walls, built in the 16th Century B.C. It was destroyed by an earthquake and rebuilt in the 15th Century B.C.
